

New-York Tribune.

To Mr. Garrison, Jr.

New York, June 5, 1872

Dear William,

30

I have just left your father at Charles McKim's office, and now at his request I write to ask you to send to me (by post or express) a copy of Pierpont's First Class Book, which he says you will find in Frankie's room. He wants a passage from the book, which he knows not where else to find.

Your father, I presume, has told your mother the news respecting my dear wife.

Yours, truly,

Oliver Johnson.

